THEME OF THE EVENT: Breakthrough vaccine for AIDS.

International AIDS funding began to decline for the first time in recent years, while less than half the people living with H.I.V./AIDS across the globe had access to antiretroviral medication. It has never been more critical to bring attention to treatment disparities to put an end to the spread of AIDS once and for all. In comparison to the cost of lifetime therapy there is a one-time vaccine intervention that is incredibly cost-effective. It is important to undertake further studies about this important cause.

is a disease that attacks the immune systems. Human Immunodeficiency Virus, or HIV, is to blame for the illness. Contact with saliva, sharing or reusing hypodermic needles, and unprotected sex are among ways that the HIV virus can spread between people.

The infection's earliest signs—fever, cold, cough, and other viral infection-like symptoms—are similar to those of any other typical flu or viral infection. There are instances where the infection may not become apparent until much later. When an infection progresses, unique illnesses like tuberculosis and other pathogenic infections, which would not ordinarily afflict someone with a sound immune system, develop. At first, the symptoms are misdiagnosed as ordinary infections and treated as such.

BRIEF REPORT ABOUT THE EVENT: Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, or AIDS, programme was centred around two things- promoting awareness about AIDS, and, secondarily, spreading information about the new vaccine that has been developed to prevent Aids. Since AIDS is still a taboo subject, the awareness programme was taken to people instead of being held in a seminar hall. Our volunteers first covered the premises of the main building, speaking to people in different rooms (including the staff room) and then took a rally outside college with the banner.

EXPECTED OUTCOMES :

Aids is a communicable disease, but quite a preventable one. We hope that the new awareness that we have tried to generate will lead people to practice healthier lifestyles.
