- BRIEF REPORT ABOUT THE EVENT/ PROGRAMME:

The program started with Dr. Sankar Basu, Assistant professor in the department of Microbiology, introducing the theme and the speaker. World Soil Day is celebrated every year to commemorate the importance of soil and subsequent soil management in our holistic journey towards sustainable development. The theme of this year's Soil Day was -- Caring for Soils: Measure, Monitor, Manage. Dr. Shramana Roy Barman and Dr. Arundhati Ganguly felicitated the speaker with gifts and mementos. The esteemed speaker started the lecture with PPT slides showcasing the meaning, characteristics and various aspects of soil health and its interconnectedness with food security. He elucidated how the conservation, cultivation and consumption of Soil had been directly impacting the pathway to achieve the UN Millenium Development Goal of Eradicating hunger and poverty. He focussed on the broader meaning of food security – access to affordable, safe and nutritious food for present and future generations. The lecture was deeply engaging as students as well as faculties of various departments started pouring in their queries. Food packets and refreshments were arranged for students and faculties. All the members of the Eco club of Asutosh College were present to make this event a success. Finally, Vote of thanks was delivered by Dr. Arjit Chatterjee.
