- BRIEF REPORT ABOUT THE EVENT/ PROGRAMME: Dr. Shaktipada Kumar, Assistant Professor in English at Coochbehar Panchanan Barma University, was the speaker today at the seminar on research methodology organised for Semester VI students of the English department. In his inimitable style, Dr. Kumar made a difficult topic like Research Methodology accessible to the audience of young scholars who listened with rapt attention as he shared his personal experience as a researcher of Purulia's Chhau Nritya, emphasising the need for a deeply felt and often lifelong engagement with the chosen research area or topic, that might be purely academic or otherwise, and preferably, in keeping with the times, inter- or multi-disciplinary enquiry. Subtly interspersing the general with the personal, his subsequent interaction with the students and faculty left a deep impact on the gathering.

Earlier, Prof. Ashis Sahu, Head of the Department of English, gave the welcome address, followed by a brief address by Dr. Sraboni Roy, the IQAC Coordinator. Floral tributes were offered to Sir Asutosh Mookerjee's portrait. Felicitation of the speaker and other distinguished guests followed.

Dr. Arpita Roy, the Director of the Research and Development Cell of our college, shared her thoughts on the day's topic as part of the inaugural session, and Prof. Bhaskar Mridha, Associate Professor in Bengali, and GB member, in a sense brought the seminar to a fitting close with an informal but heartfelt address at the end.

- EXPECTED OUTCOME: Students would develop a research mindset, and be motivated towards research-oriented activities, including publication, within or beyond the confines of classical academics.
