BRIEF REPORT ABOUT THE EVENT:

- Asutosh College, Department of Geography, had organized a Poster Competition in collaboration with IQAC on Fifteenth day of May, 2024. The participants were from two regular semesters studying under-graduation viz. second semester and fourth semester. The students were divided into different groups of 6-7 members guided by the mentors selected within the department. Students were asked to choose the topic for posters from the primary theme “Contemporary Issues in Natural and Anthropogenic Hazards”. The motive of this poster competition was to reach all students of different academic performance. This program was not only a healthy competition but also enabled students to expose their thoughts, arts and presentation about the subject on which they are specializing/ graduating. Geography is a practical based subject covering all possible knowledge about the nature, human and hazard relationship. Therefore, students had chosen variety of topics for their presentation, few examples of their topics are Pollution Impact on Human Health, Industrial Hazards and its Impact, Sociological and Technical Hazards and alike. There were around eighteen posters done by the students.

To encourage the mindset of competitiveness among students’ prizes were arranged by the department sponsored by the Principal’s Office, judged by faculties of other departments of the College. Judges had proposed their evaluation and honorable Principal Professor Manas Kabi had distributed the prizes among the students with certificate of participation.

- EXPECTED OUTCOME: A healthy competition enabled students to expose their thoughts, arts and presentation about the contemporary topic a specialised part of Geographical Studies. An exchange of ideas and thoughts among peer members helped students’ solidarity for Geography department.
