➤ Theme: Newspapers as a Vocabulary of Protest

➤ Academic Session: 2025-2026

➤ Date: 15th July 2025

➤ Venue: Google Meet (Online)

➤ Objective:

1. To understand the role of newspapers in social and political movements.
2. To encourage students to study journalism as a tool of protest and reform.
3. To provide an interdisciplinary perspective by linking history and journalism.

➤ Speaker: Dr. Subhasri Ghosh, Assistant Professor, Department of History, Asutosh College

➤ Participants: Students and faculty members from the department

➤ Brief Report:

The Department of Journalism and Mass Communication, Asutosh College, in collaboration with IQAC, organised a special lecture on “Setting the Context: Newspapers as a Vocabulary of Protest” on 15th July 2025.

The resource person for the lecture was Dr. Subhasri Ghosh, Assistant Professor, Department of History, Asutosh College. Dr. Ghosh provided valuable insights into the role of newspapers in shaping public opinion, mobilising masses, and becoming instruments of protest in historical as well as contemporary contexts. The session highlighted how journalism has often acted as a catalyst for social and political change.

The lecture was attended by students and faculty members from the department, who engaged in an interactive discussion, linking historical examples with present-day media practices.

➤ Expected Outcome:

1. Students will gain awareness of the historical role of newspapers in shaping protest narratives.
2. The lecture will enhance critical thinking about the power of the press in democratic societies.
3. It will motivate students to view journalism as not just a profession, but also a medium of social responsibility and change.
4. Participants will learn to draw parallels between past and present media practices.

The session successfully deepened students’ understanding of the intersections between history, journalism, and social transformation.
