

I thought humans were loving and kind!
Alas, now it seems my vision was blind.
Obscure they went on, diminishing with vim and zest,
Lest they know, without us it's all a waste!

They love to look and admire us,
So, they put us beyond the bars!
Humans snatch our freedom,
Not really conscious to practice wisdom!

Our stripes - their fashion statement
Our skin portrays their lifestyle increment!
God forbid, they face the fear we do,
But, if Nature wants, we shall laugh too!

But, no we are not as cruel as Them,
We are the actual 'Gem',
Fierce in our roar,
But loving and responsible we are from the core!

I wish I could teach them ecological balance!
For they read about keystone species which goes into grave,
Unaware to serve the saviour's essence!
HUMAN KIND, show mercy that is what we all crave!
