

World's Whisper

Trishit Chattopadhyay

Student
BSc. 2ndYear
Department of Environmental Science
Asutosh College
chattopadhyaytrishit@gmail.com

Listen to the whispers of the Earth so faint, yet clear

A plea for help to those who are ready to hear.

In the heart of the woods where the old trees stand

Whispers carry secrets of their untamed land.

Climate change whispers with each glacier's tear

A warning of what happens if we don't adhere.

Leaves rustle stories in a symphony so grand

A testament of time sculpted by nature's hand.

Beneath the canopy where silent shadows dance

Speak of life's vibrant expanse.

With the weeping wind through willow below the twilight

The earth talks all night about her sorrow and fight.

In the drought her tears run dry

She can't breathe in the smoke-filled sky.

Before the earth becomes too weak to speak let's listen to the whispers of earth,

Her wisdom vast and old to cherish all wonders more precious than gold.

